

Red Maple

The Red Maple prefers full sun to partial shade and can adapt easily to a wide variety of soil types.

It has a moderate growth rate and reaches a mature height of 40 to 60 feet.

Red maple is browsed by some wildlife species, including white-tailed deer, moose, and rabbits. It is a particularly valuable white-tailed deer browse during the late fall and winter, and is considered an important deer food in Minnesota.